A guidebook to facilitate hui and a web page to be used as resources for the community

There are 3 parts to this project:

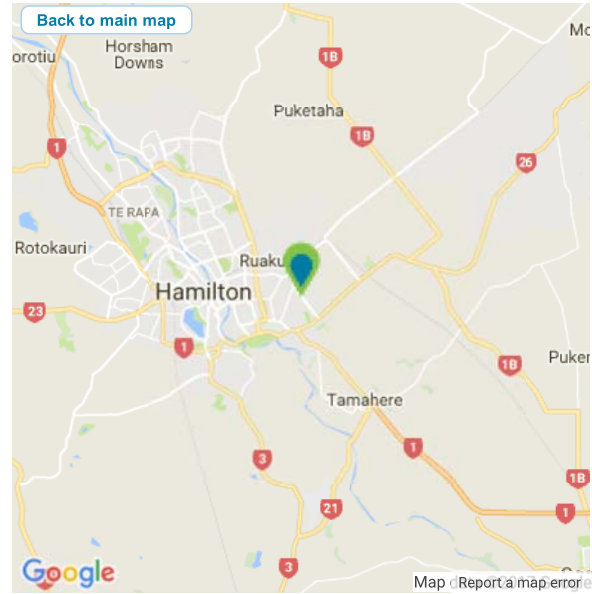

1. Guidebook for primarily community end-users focusing on the whole Waikato River catchment;
2. Practical hui that link directly to Guide content and
3. Guide and hui-related web pages.

The NZ Landcare Trust believes the guide will be a valuable resource for the community. Our experience shows there to be a need for user friendly publications which provide practical advice and reference material to support encourage practical action on the ground.

The NZ Landcare Trust has received very positive feedback from the diverse end-users of these publications (including landowners, community groups, agencies, science providers and businesses). Over 1000 copies of each have already been distributed and or requested with some publications moving to a second print run.

This project received funding from the Waikato River Authority (WRA 11-060)
